

Hansen Kid Home After a Big Time

Huck and Tom Would Have Welcomed Brooklyn Boy as Worthy Playfellow After the Thrills of His Disappearance to the Beach Resorts.

The mystery of the first disappearance of Master Bernard Hansen, aged eleven, of No. 316 56th Street, Brooklyn, who would have been on the raft with Huck and Tom and the King and the Duke if he happened a little sooner, was partially solved at 2 o'clock this morning, when a H. H. T. motorman rang all the bells in the neighborhood of the Hansen house and, finally awakening Mrs. Hansen, asked:

"Is this your kid?"
After three days of Adventure with a capital A young Hansen was found asleep at 1 o'clock to-day in a sand box at the 56th Street trolley station. Bernard slept eight hours before telling his Ma all about the beaches he visited, how he started out with nothing but managed to pay his way, and all about the wonderful acquaintances he made and the things he saw.

He was in the midst of a perfectly cooking story when a reporter arrived, and Mrs. Hansen—meaning to give the boy the never-do-it-again thought—made the mistake of introducing the reporter as a detective. "Gee!" said Bernard, and promptly disappeared again.

"Well, Ma," the boy had been telling his mother, "you had been promising to take me to the beaches and when Monday afternoon came you said you were too busy and locked me in my room. I ain't a kid any more, so I climbed out of the window and by walking all the afternoon managed to reach 56th Beach. I slept in the sand all night and on Tuesday headed for Coney."

"At Coney I had the luck to find a gold watch on the beach and a man who saw me said it was his watch and gave me 75 cents for finding it. Tuesday was my big day. I seen everything, some place!"

"Tuesday night I got a job polishing brass in one of the big amusement parks. I got my supper, my breakfast and permission to shoot the clowns as much as I liked. In the morning the man says, 'You son of a gun, you ran away from home,' and give me 5 cents and says, 'Beat it!'"

"Instead, I went out on a deep sea fishing boat. I helped the men a little and when we came back had a real shore dinner over a beach fire. Late yesterday afternoon I got on a Bay Ridge train with my last nickel and—"

"This gentleman, Bernard," said Mrs. Hansen, introducing the reporter who called at this juncture, "is a Detective."

"Wait till I get something I left in my room," said the explorer. Five minutes later Mrs. Hansen began looking under the beds and into the closets.

No Bernard.

CITY BUS BUYING ENJOINED BY COURT

Also Restrained From Issuing
$1,000,000 Certificates for Equipment on Abandoned Car Lines.

Supreme Court Justice Gavegan to-day signed a formal order on the application of Edward Schaefer, a tax payer, granting a temporary injunction against the city and restraining it from expending any money on the purchase of buses or bus equipment.

The restraining order enjoins the city from issuing certificates for $1,000,000 to purchase buses for lines on streets abandoned by the street car companies. It also restrains City Comptroller Craig from paying any money for the purposes of the resolution adopted March 12, appropriating $1,000,000 for new buses.

Schaefer asked that the city be enjoined from causing any employee to operate or to assist in the operation of buses, but this part of his application was denied.

Man and Boy Hurt in Runaway.

Harry Cottrick, thirty-four years, of 331 East 95th Street and Frank Minnie, ten years, of No. 615 East 134th Street were injured in a runaway at 16th Street and Second Avenue, this morning. In stopping the horse and wagon, owned by Biagio Minnie, the boy's father, Cottrick received a lacerated face and fractured ribs. Young Minnie, who was in the wagon, suffered a fractured left arm. Both were removed to Mt. Sinai Hospital.

PLAYWRIGHT QUILTS AS ROCKVILLE CHIEF

William F. Phillips Says He's Just Tired, But Residents Hint He Objected to Uniform.

William F. Phillips has resigned as Captain of Police of Rockville Center. Until this morning he had been acting chief.

"Just tired of police work," said Phillips to-day.

But residents of Rockville Center say the reason dates back to the arrest by Capt. Phillips of Edward Mongolles, banker, charged with violating the automobile lighting ordinance at night. Mongolles raised the point that Phillips was not in his full police uniform. The village trustees later passed an ordinance compelling the Captain to wear the full regalia and his resignation followed.

Phillips has been Captain of Rockville Center's police for three years. He was at one time the dancing partner of Edith Kelly, who married Frank Gould, and he has written several comedies which have been staged. His censor is T. V. Bacon, a former soldier.
